Mi Chola = My Girl

Some people refer to a prized car, boat, motorcycle or girlfriend as their “baby” or “girl” indicating that it’s something for which they will always cherish, pamper and protect. For us, this Aspen Cantina is our baby and our girl. Not only have the owners poured a tremendous amount of love and devotion towards this restaurant, but their history with the previous restaurant in this location, The Cantina, goes way back to 1997 when Darren first started working here as a waiter. Ever since then, buddy Adam and himself have both had a very turbulent / on-off relationship with this restaurant. Both of them being California kids, they both independently left Aspen and The Cantina for the west coast on multiple occasions in search of the “real world.” Having failed miserably every time, they always found refuge in moving back to Aspen, and The Cantina was always there to provide them with work, shelter, friends, family and a home. In this vein, this is why we refer to The Cantina as our baby and our girl. She’s always been there for us. Because she’s Mexican / American with street spice and attitude that’s been through a lot of turbulent change and growth over the years, she really is Mi Chola in the truest, most endearing sense of the word. She’s our baby and our girl and your experience while you’re here is intended to reflect that passion.
